The Horrmann Library, completed in 1961, was built in the modern style by Perkins & Will. The library was named for local brewer August Horrmann whose family donated $100,000 for its construction. It contains nearly 200,000 volumes, media materials, government documents, etc.

The library houses the Edwin Markham Archive, the Wagner College Archive and the Sutter Lutheran Archive.

You can use the Horrmann Library website to search for books, read e-books, journals, and access online databases loaded with full-text articles for your research. The library also offers virtual research help through chat and email. Need help? Ask a librarian!

Page taken from former Wagnerpedia web site.

October 2012